

Gal Kol is a pool of professionals in every respect: technical, professional, artistic, and administrative

Our quality objectives are:

Conversion of all existing formats to customer requirements

- High-standard technical specifications
- Compliance with delivery dates
- Proper handling of customers' property (intellectual and tangible)
- Achieving these objectives requires a combination of four main quality elements:

Work processes

Gal Kol maintains standardized and documented work processes, being fully aware that these ensure the best product quality for our customers. The work processes are a combination of several organizational layers, which support each other and maintain interactions.

Infrastructure

Gal Kol realizes the importance and significance of infrastructure and the provision of an optimal work environment for conversion processes. The company allocates all required resources to provide the appropriate infrastructure.

Risk management and quality control

Conversion projects require systematic assurance control. The goal is to provide a high-quality product and to prevent and treat non-conformities in real time. Gal Kol manages a control system over the conversion process from the beginning of a project to the final delivery of the finished products. The control in the digitization department is based primarily on a human process control integrated with computerized quality control.

Our moto: The quality depends on all employees

In addition to the quality control, each project is analyzed for relevant risks. Following the results of the analysis, appropriate controls are planned and the staff is trained accordingly.

Inventory management and customer property

Gal Kol uses an inventory management system. The inventory is held in appropriate conditions to preserve the audio material. Gal Kol also provides logistics services for transporting the material. Protection and preservation of clients' property are a high priority.
